Individual

The Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice (ACP&J) annual membership fee for an individual is $20, or five volunteer hours at the ACP&J. The membership will begin once payment (or volunteer hours) are completed, and will need to be renewed annually.

Members of the ACP&J are encouraged to attend CC meetings and Meetings of the Membership. At CC Meetings, only the CC members come to consensus. At Meetings of the Membership, members have voting rights if an action item is present. Members also get 50% off of all rentals and priority for scheduling recurring events.

Family

The ACP&J annual membership fee for a family is $30 or six volunteer hours at the ACP&J. The membership will begin once payment (or volunteer hours) are completed and will need to be renewed annually.

Each family membership has voting rights for Membership Meetings if an action item is present. One vote per family membership. Family memberships also get 50% off of all rentals and priority for scheduling recurring events.

Peace and Justice Organizations Linking Arms (PAJOLA)

Organizations are welcome to become members of the ACP&J and will automatically be included in our Membership Group known as the Peace and Justice Organizations Linking Arms (PAJOLA).

The ACP&J membership fee for an organization can be paid annually or monthly. Annually it's either $125 or 24 volunteer hours. Monthly it's either $11 per month or two volunteer hours per month. In either case the membership will begin once payment (or volunteer hours) are completed (in the monthly case just the first month must be completed). Organizations must agree to the mission and vision statement of the ACP&J in order to join.

Member organizations are encouraged to attend CC meetings, and have voting rights at Membership Meetings if an action item is present. Please note that the membership is for the organization, and not the individuals of said organization. Each member organization gets one vote at Membership Meetings, and are encouraged to send a representative of said organization to submit their vote.

PAJOLA groups get 50% off of all rentals and priority for recurring events just like individuals and families. However, they also receive additional benefits listed below.
